Message from the Guest Editor

Dear Colleagues,

This special issue comprises selected multidisciplinary papers on the uncertainties in climate change and its consequences in sustainable development. The impact of the climate change on our physical environment is of unimaginable magnitude. There are number of scientist, politicians and decision makers who on denial of the climate change and the same number who support the climate change concept. These paper will form a forum of which experts in different displines will dissect the global warming issues. Out of this discussion a better understanding the impact of the global warming and possible actions to be taken or no action to be taken.
