

Changing Facets of Environmental Engineering

C. Venkobachar

Abstract

This paper entails the environmental challenges faced by environmental engineers, scientists, enlightened legislators and aroused public in the past and present. The mistakes that were committed and their impact on the future environmental issues are highlighted. Possible solutions both in terms of technological and human resource development are suggested.