About the Organizer	Peking University was founded in 1898 as the first national comprehensive university of China. As the birthplace of the New Culture Movement, the developments of Peking University are closely linked with the rejuvenation of the Chinese nation, and have played an important role in the process of China's modernization. Peking University's traditional spirit of patriotism, progress, democracy, science, and being diligent, rigorous, realistic and innovative in studies is being passed from generation to generation. Peking University turned into an all-round university concentrating on fundamental liberal and natural teaching and researching after the foundation of People's Republic of China. The university supplied the nation with a huge number of talents in various fields. Rough statistics showed that there came out of Peking University approximately 400 members of the Chinese Academy of Sciences and Chinese Academy of Engineering, not to mention a large number of prestigious celebrities in the fields of liberal arts and social sciences. The idea that China establishes the Institute of South-South Cooperation and Development was initiated and announced by Chinese President XI Jinping during the High-Level Round table on South-South Cooperation at the 70th Anniversary Celebration of the United Nations in New York on September 26, 2015. With strong support from the Chinese Ministry of Commerce, the Ministry of Education, and the Ministry of Finance, and by virtue of Peking University's strength in humanities and social sciences, Institute of South-South Cooperation and Development (ISSCAD) was officially established at the National School of Development of Peking University (NSD) on April 29, 2016. Combining local knowledge with global vision, the new Institute is committed to excellence in national development research, talent training for developing countries, and dynamic exchange platform for global cooperation, and devoted to promoting equitable, inclusive and sustainable growth by sharing knowledge and experience on matters of public leadership and national development, with developing and especially the least developed countries. The core faculty of ISSCAD draws heavily from NSD, which has an established reputation both academically and as a policy think-tank in China. Well aware that to craft effective solutions to complex real-world problems would require a multidisciplinary and actionable approach, the core faculty is also supported synergistically by a scalable network of select faculty and professional (including senior government officials) associates from other schools and departments of Peking University and beyond. The purpose is to nurture a vibrant interdisciplinary learning environment that encourages intense inquiry, open dialogue, and cross-cultural learning, and serves as a bridge between theory and practice. The Institute offers both degree and non-degree executive educational programs. Our degree programs feature a rigorous economics-centered and problem-solving oriented

	curriculum which also covers quantitative analysis, political institutions, strategic management, leadership, and globalization. A flagship of internationalization of education at Peking University, the Institute offers regular semester-based courses in English. Through these regular courses, supplemented by fieldwork and workshops on various policy domains (such as education and poverty reduction, population and public health, social security and public safety, urban development and land reform, energy and environment, technological innovation, and global governance and foreign policy), students are expected to develop a box of conceptual tools that is cross-disciplinary in nature but adapted for actions appropriate for local or country-specific conditions.
Seminar Content	1. Lectures The lectures will focus on hot issues related to the national development of China and developing countries. Main topics involve: China's economic growth, reform and opening up and globalization, the Belt and Road, national governance, green development, etc.. 2. Topics discussions Discussions will be carried out with participants on the above-mentioned hot issues concerning the national development of China and developing countries. 3.
